

HARVEY PLEADS FOR FEMALE VOTE

Noted Editor Makes Brilliant Address Before Equal Suffrage League.

RIDICULES OPPOSITION

Says Genesis Was Borrowed Book and Paul Did Not Write Ephesians.

Colonel George Harvey, of New York, editor, author and scholar, last evening addressed a distinguished audience on the theme of equal suffrage in the auditorium of the Jefferson Hotel. Dr. Harvey was introduced by Major J. C. Hemphill, editor of The Times-Dispatch, and was received with applause. In the audience sat a number of state officials and municipal dignitaries, although the house was largely composed of the gentler sex, members of the Equal Suffrage League of Virginia.

The address of Dr. Harvey was nothing less than brilliant and for an hour and thirty minutes he kept his audience swaying between smiles and tears. The speaker dwelt largely in ridicule, interspersed with frequent appeals to the more tender emotions. His address was happily devoid of statistical citations and the rapid attention of his hearers was never lost.

States Fall in Line.
The speaker began by saying the States of California, Nevada and Kansas had in the last few weeks been won over to the cause for which he pleaded. He prophesied that other Commonwealths would soon follow their lead. A vital truth, said Dr. Harvey, "must be accepted by all peoples of respectability, and a truth once accepted can never die."

Dr. Harvey continued by citing some favorite and time-worn arguments still very much in vogue among those hostile to the cause of suffrage for women. Prominent among these was the old maxim, generally employed by deceptible philosophers, that woman, being unable to shoulder muskets, had no right to aspire to a voice in government. "By this method of argument," said Dr. Harvey, "a deopatra would have been less than a blacksmith. But it is my conviction that brain is not always founded on brawn, or else I would take off my hat to a mule."

Argument Unjust.
Touching upon the question of abandoned women, which argument, said the speaker, is frequently urged against the movement of ballots for both sexes, he was not at all disposed to deny justice to virtue that he might thwart vice, nor did he see that any rigid qualification of clean living was imposed upon the masculine sovereigns now empowered with the privilege to vote.

"Women," said Dr. Harvey, "personally own more than forty per cent of the Pennsylvania Railroad and of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Yet woman is denied that fundamental right in the government of this republic enjoyed by the imported foreigner who lays rails on the Pennsylvania tracks, or the Scandinavian, who labors in the coal mines of West Virginia, and the Italian, who exhibits a monkey for the delectation of the children of the streets."

The speaker was aware that woman's province was considered by many to be solely in the centre of the home circle, that there, with her hand upon the cradle, she swayed the destinies of empire and shaped the course and progress of the world. But it was a misfortune with Dr. Harvey that he at times was plagued with memories of that same of pagan domestic felicity when the wives of the citizens of Athens were locked and bolted and confined behind walls.

No doubt these Athenian mothers rocked their cradles. But he would have his hearers believe that babies and ballots were not at all irreconcilable, as was fondly imagined by mankind.

It was at this period of his discourse that Dr. Harvey referred to Holy Writ, he regretted that some ministers, good and devout men, were nevertheless blinded by prejudice to the extent of believing and proclaiming that woman is forbidden by the Scriptures to have any voice in governmental affairs. "The crux of the whole matter here," said Dr. Harvey, "lies in the question of whether or not woman is possessed of a soul. This is, of course, to raise a distinct issue between Buddhism and Christianity. If then woman is possessed of a soul, she is worthy of personal liberty, and there can be no hindrance to her being a citizen, where justice is denied."

The speaker believed that when it was once admitted that man and woman were of equal mind and of equal soul, it must follow that the one is in no wise inferior to the other. "But," continued he, "the overzealous clergy, and he tells us that in the Book of Genesis woman was fashioned from the rib of man. Man, therefore, looked down, pityingly upon his inferior, fashioned from bone, remembering that Eve was but a rib reared on unripe fruit. But does he stop to consider that he himself is a lineal descendant of dirt, born to vote, and to return unto dust?"

Wives In Subjection.
Dr. Harvey next indulged in some higher criticism of certain books in spiritual writings. He pointed out that had been discovered that certain parts of the Bible, which the apostle enjoins woman, saying: "Wives, be in subjection to your husbands." And after the general attack had in some sort subsided, he made the announcement that the Apostle Paul was not the real author of the Epistle to the Ephesians, which writing he ascribed to some unmentioned scribe. Dr. Harvey did not leave this part of his address without expressing his conviction that the world was better off for the presence and preaching of Paul, even admitting that this apostle had entertained some rather radical views regarding the proper province of woman.

S.S.S. CURES SKIN DISEASES

A perfect condition of the skin exists as long as the blood is normal, but when it becomes contaminated with humors and acids its supply of nutritive properties is greatly lessened, and it becomes a sharp, acrid fluid which diseases instead of preserving the natural health and texture of the skin. Then come Skin Diseases; the character of the eruption depending upon the nature of the humor with which the blood is infected. If there is an excess of acid in the circulation the trouble is characterized by itching and burning eruptions. Other impurities produce watery blisters, rashes, etc., commonly known as Eczema, Tetter or Salt Rheum, while still other morbid matters in the circulation cause Acne, pimples and like troubles. It is right and proper to get what relief one may from the application of washes, salves, etc., but such treatment should not be depended on alone to produce a cure—only a thorough purification of the blood can accomplish this. S.S.S. cures Skin Diseases of every character and kind, because it purifies the blood. It goes down into the circulation and removes the humors and acids, builds up the weak, acrid blood, and completely cures all skin affections. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice free S.S.S. is for sale at drug stores.

ince of woman. He said that it was not a question of what Paul wrote in the year 7, but what Paul would write if now on earth which should merit the grave consideration of those searching his books to become informed.

Dr. Harvey continued by saying there are many who still cling to the belief that woman would sacrifice her modesty to establish her political independence, that she would neglect her child to cast her ballot; that she would dilute her household by coming in political contact with her husband, her lord and her master. Dr. Harvey could subscribe to none of these views. On the contrary, the speaker was of the profound conviction that suffrage for women was the question of the gravest import now confronting the world. The right of woman to exercise the franchise meant the difference between war and peace; it meant the difference between civilization and barbarism; it meant the difference between Christianity and paganism.

Appeals to Emotions.
Dr. Harvey concluded his address with a pathetic appeal to the emotions. He spoke of a recent visit paid by him to a cemetery. In this God's acre slumbered thousands of men who had fallen in battle in the Federal armies, fighting for the preservation of the Union and for what they considered to be right.

Over the headstones were inscribed these words: "In the Service of Their Country and Their God." In a remote corner of the cemetery was an unmarked grave. It had a cross on it, the mother of a soldier. A woman bowed to death in sorrow and despair, who had waited and who had waited in vain.

Dr. Harvey here asked who bore the burden of war? In his opinion it was the women of the land. The man may bear the brunt amid the clash and crash of arms, but it is our women who must bear the burden and stagger beneath the weight of the cross. The speaker concluded by proclaiming that war and battle could be swept from the world only by the restraining voice and vote of womankind. "If men will still fly at each other's throats, then let such men follow the flag and the drums of battle, but let us leave to our women the God-given right to reason, that through her reason she may ransom the world."

BANK DEPOSITOR BEGGED CHARITY

Had $1,300, but Asked for Permanent Care at City Home.

Claiming that he was a pauper and looking every inch of it, and giving his name as Lewis Miller and his home as Wisconsin, a white man, apparently about seventy-five years old, applied a few days ago at the City Home for permanent quarters. He said that he had not a cent on earth, no home, nothing to eat, and nowhere to sleep. He was gaunt and haggard from long traveling, and his clothes were hanging in shreds. His head covering was an old straw hat, and his feet were much nearer to the paving than to good leather.

Superintendent Cabell was dubious about taking him in, as he was not a resident of Richmond, but he told the ambulance surgeons that he was an ill man and partially paralyzed, and they agreed to take him in and give him medical treatment.

Hard Luck Story.
The old man said that his wife was dead, and that he had lived in Wisconsin for twenty years. But the climate was too cold and rigorous, and he had come South where the wind was tempered to the shorn lamb.

He came by train as far as his money would permit, and then he hiked it in the good old-fashioned way, used long before trains were invented and the power of steam was known. He said, too, that he had fought in the Civil War under General McClellan, and so knew something of the Old Dominion, the hospitality of which he had often heard and read.

A bath was ordered for him, and, strange to say, he took it. That at once relieved the minds of the physicians of the doubt that he might be but an ordinary wandering hobo. When the word bath is mentioned to one of the regulars he immediately picks up his neck and departs. Not so with Miller; he bathed, and seemed to enjoy it. While he was cleansing himself of the dust and dirt of travel an orderly examined his bag to see what valuables he might have for deposit in the general office. The first thing the orderly came across was a bank receipt, showing that there was to Miller's credit in a Richmond bank $1,300.

He was reproached for his deceit, but he didn't mind. He still insisted that he had no money, nothing more than the bank deposit, which he couldn't use just then. He was permitted to stay one night, and the next morning they gently showed him the door and the sun rising in the east. He went on his way.

LEGAL CONTESTS ARE UNABATED

Attorneys for Political Leader Cox Fighting Hard for Delay.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 22.—Legal contests between the county prosecutor and attorneys for George B. Cox, who is making an effort to prevent Judge Frank M. Gorman, of the Common Pleas Court, from trying him on the charge of perjury, continued today unabated.

The result of the day's proceedings was that Gorman for the defendants' attorneys to appear before him on the motion to quash the indictment. Arguments were heard all during the afternoon session, at the conclusion of which Judge Gorman announced that he would receive briefs tomorrow and render judgment on the motion to quash as soon as he had time to go over the briefs.

The Circuit Court, which is hearing the petition for a mandatory injunction against Judge Gorman, to prevent him from trying the case of Cox, probably will reach a decision tomorrow.

DON'T BE NERVOUS!

YOUR nerves are over-strung, and you feel, sometimes, as though they would snap.

Loosen the tension, as you would the strings of a guitar, or piano.

Do it by taking CARDUI, the woman's tonic. It relieves the strain on your nerves—or, rather, it strengthens your nerves, so the strain does not seem so bad, as it does to weak nerves.

Weak women,—weak because of their womanly ailments—seem to suffer a great deal from nervous troubles.

The womanly ailment saps and weakens their vitality and soon they feel as if they were on the ragged edge of despair.

CARDUI is a remedy that has been found of very great benefit in just such conditions.

Not one, but thousands of women in this condition, have been benefited by its use.

No extravagant claims are made for this medicine. Those who claim the most for it, are those who have bought it and used it.

It is a scientific remedy, that acts in a scientific way, and if you suffer in the manner described, it is probable that it will do as much for you as it has for so many others.

At least, a trial cannot harm you, will cost but a trifle and may lead you to health.

Take CARDUI, THE WOMAN'S TONIC

So Weak and Nervous

I must speak a good word for CARDUI. Some time ago, I was in very bad health. I was so weak and nervous that I was not able to do my house-work.

My husband bought me one bottle of Wine of Cardui; I took it according to directions, and now I am in good health.

I think CARDUI is a fine medicine for weak women.

TWO DEAD AS RESULT OF OLD FAMILY FEUD

When Henry Lester Is Fired On His Son Shoots His Assailants, Killing Both, Then Starts for County Seat to Surrender.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Roanoke, Va., March 22.—Luther Lowe and Robert Lester are dead, and Henry Lester is mortally wounded, as the result of a fight in the west end of Tazewell county about dark last night. Ben Lester, a son of Henry Lester, is on his way to the courthouse to surrender for the double murder.

The entire community is in a state of excitement over the shooting. The result of the day's proceedings was that Gorman for the defendants' attorneys to appear before him on the motion to quash the indictment. Arguments were heard all during the afternoon session, at the conclusion of which Judge Gorman announced that he would receive briefs tomorrow and render judgment on the motion to quash as soon as he had time to go over the briefs.

The Circuit Court, which is hearing the petition for a mandatory injunction against Judge Gorman, to prevent him from trying the case of Cox, probably will reach a decision tomorrow.

The two Lesters mentioned are cousins of the man who killed Sheriff Bogie of Tazewell county. In this town about thirty years ago, the Lesters have been more or less engaged in lawlessness and feuds with the Lowes and others of their neighborhood for many years, and have given the county authorities a great deal of trouble.

AMUSEMENTS

Bijou—"Graustark," matinee and night.
Lubin—Vaudeville.
Always Charming.

Miss Billie Burke, who is a welcome visitor wherever she goes, comes to the Academy of Music to-morrow and Saturday and Saturday matinee with "Suzanne," the Belgian comedy, in which she has been appearing with so much success at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, since Christmas. In "Love Watches" the comedy in which Miss Burke first appeared in which she impersonated a French girl, in "Mrs. Dot," her offering last season, she was an English widow, and now she is a Belgian maiden. Next year it may be a German or a Russian or a Norwegian, but whatever it is, it is sure to be sweet and dainty and pretty and charming. Miss Burke couldn't play any other kind of a character, but in that kind she is thoroughly at home.
